Loughborough College Supported Internship programme records outstanding employment rate

Young people who could face significant barriers to getting a job are being offered vital help from a Loughborough College scheme recording outstanding employment rates.

The Supported Internship programme at the College is enabling more than ten times the national average of people with Special Educational Needs and/or disabilities (SEND) to get into work.

Loughborough College student Harry Murray, 22, has secured a job with Loughborough Market: "The College has really supported me while I have been studying with them for the past three years. I have learnt so much and also had the chance to gain work experience. That has helped me feel more confident than I have ever been. Read more here.
